

Erasmus+ HEREs Seminar on Higher Education and Vocational Education & Training”

10-11 March, Istanbul, Turkey

The concept of the seminar was very well defined, because the participants had the opportunity to get in touch with comparative experiences of various countries. Also, very important is that the background of participants was heterogenous as participants from the EU countries were present as well as those from the Eastern Europe and outside the European continent. For a country like Montenegro, where the reform of the labour market and legislative is underway, it is of essential importance to gain experience from the countries where Vocational Education and Training (VET) has become a part of regular processes.

It has been shown that VET should be taken into consideration when defining different policies on the national level, as it plays very important role when it comes to fostering economic and social development in Montenegro. The seminar has shown what are weak points of Montenegro in certain areas and has given an incentive on serious considering of benefits of VET as an integral part of the high education system of Montenegro.

Based on the analysis of the education system of the countries whose representatives had spoken, can be concluded that Montenegro as well shall follow the experiences that would bring the outcome of the reforms in the field of labour market, and that youth shall be empowered for the need of the modern times.
